Good afternoon

I know I have missed the closing date of submissions, but I thought I would send my thought any way

I believe business in general would benefit if there was a tax free threshold of $100,000

I believe this would be more beneficial than reducing the tax rates by a couple of percentage points

I believe especially for small / micro business that if we new our first $100,000 of profits was tax free we would feel more comfortable employing people and spending more on equipment.

Everyone would feel they are getting a break rather than see big business like the mining giants and the banks showing billions of dollars in profit and adding to that bottom line with hundreds of millions more due to the lower tax margin, whilst small business still battle away and the tax margin not even making a dent to their finances

The reduction in tax rates is only. Really beneficial to large corporations shareholders as I do not believe these savings by big business will use the savings to employ more people, when they are actively looking at ways to reduce cost. Unfortunately Human resources are very expensive.

Thanks you for taking the time

Kind regards,
